

From THINCR with love: Sharing Holiday Cheer with Our RHU Partners

As the year came to a close, our team spread the spirit of the season by sharing Christmas baskets with our partner Rural Health Units (RHUs) as a heartfelt expression of gratitude for their continued support in referring patients to our clinical trials.

The success of our research efforts is made possible through strong collaboration with frontline healthcare workers who play a crucial role in patient identification, referral, and access to innovative clinical studies. This simple yet meaningful activity was our way of recognizing their dedication, hard work, and commitment to improving patient care in the community.

Beyond celebrating the holidays, the activity also strengthened partnerships built on trust, collaboration, and shared goals. We are truly grateful to our RHU partners for being an essential part of our journey in advancing clinical research and public health.

As we welcome a new year, we look forward to continuing our collaboration and working together to bring better health outcomes to the communities we serve.
